CNN (12/4) noted GW in an article regarding a Brookings Institution report ranking Washington the most walkable city in the nation and in an article (12/6) regarding GW’s collaboration with the International Council of Shopping Centers in developing training for mall security guards.

The Orange County Register (12/3) noted GW as the most expensive school in the nation in an article regarding college planning.

Los Angeles Times (12/3) noted Young Voter Strategies, a project at GW’s Graduate School of Political Management, in an article regarding presidential candidates’ aims at obtaining young people’s votes.

Insidehighered.com (12/5) noted GW regarding a blog titled The Monkey Cage, on which political science professors regularly post.

News.yahoo.com (12/5), sciam.com (12/5), and a Reuters News article posted on revolutionhealth.com (12/6) noted GW research regarding the rate of visits to U.S. hospital emergency rooms.

Businessweek (12/5) noted GW in an article regarding universities that offer full scholarships to local high school graduates.

Worldnetdaily.com (12/5) and Counterterrorisnblog.com (12/13) noted GW’s Homeland Security Policy Institute regarding their report “Out of the Shadows” regarding radicalization in the U.S. prison system.

Nyunews.com (12/6) noted GW for its use of cage-free eggs in an article regarding NYU’s Student Services Committee proposal for the university’s use of cage-free eggs.

The Washington Post (12/8) noted GW’s Institute of Policy, Democracy, & the Internet for its research on “poli-fluentials” in an article regarding Oprah Winfrey’s endorsement of Barrack Obama and Barbra Streisand’s endorsement of Hilary Clinton.

Globalnation.inquirer.net (12/7) noted GW’s assistance in a review by 522 experts of 111 islands and archipelagos for the fourth Destination Scorecard survey conducted by the National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations.
The New Orleans Times-Picayune (12/11) mentioned GW’s Hamilton Fish Institute on School and Community Violence regarding a new federally financed study that concluded youth courts are the fastest-growing alternative to the traditional juvenile justice system and school disciplinary proceedings in an article regarding reviving teen court programs in New Orleans.

Insidehighered.com (12/11) reported a discussion between scholars and copyright specialists titled “Copyright and the University: An Academic Symposium,” in GW’s Media and Public Affairs Building.

Montana’s Great Falls Tribune (12/11) noted GW’s Native American Political Leadership Scholarship program in an article regarding a student recipient.

Local.lancasteronline.com (12/14) noted GW in an article regarding college tuition costs.

John Banzhaf, professor of law, was quoted on ABC News (12/10) regarding “the report card incentive,” a program developed in Seminole County, Fla., to reward students for good grades by promising them “food prizes.” The New York Times (12/12) quoted him regarding a “Ladies Night Out” case at a Las Vegas gym.

Frank Cilluffo, associate vice president for homeland security, was quoted on nysun.com (12/13) regarding a Saudi Arabian re-education program.

James Clark, Ronald R. Weintraub professor of biology and chair of the department of biological sciences, was featured in a National Geographic special about “dinosaur death traps” in China (12/9). San Francisco Chronicle (12/8) noted him in a review of the film.

Eric Cline, chair of the department of classical & Semitic Language & Literature and associate professor of Classics, was a guest on Australian Radio for The Religion Report (12/5) regarding biblical archaeology and amateur enthusiasts.

Silena Davis, executive aide, was quoted in The Washington Post (12/2) regarding Congress’s action on a tax bill that might delay tax refunds.

Amitai Etzioni, University Professor and professor of international affairs, was quoted on nationalinterest.org (12/3) from his National Interest article regarding a plan B for Iran. News.yahoo.com (12/6) posted his op-ed regarding politicians and honesty.

James Goldgeier, professor of political science and international affairs, was featured in an archival audio tour of the history of US-Russian relations since the fall of the Soviet Union posted on publicbroadcasting.net (12/10).

Richard Green, director of the Center for Real Estate and Urban Analysis, director of the Center for Washington Area Studies, and Oliver T. Carr, Jr. Professor of Real Estate Finance, was quoted on rttnews.com (12/6) regarding legislative efforts for loan modification in an interview regarding his testimony before the House Financial Services Committee.
Susan Haney, associate director, student health services, was quoted on calibre.mworld.com (12/3) in a GW Hatchet article regarding cold sores.

Stephen Hess, distinguished research professor of media and public affairs, was quoted in the Houston Chronicle (12/6) regarding issues related to religion in an article regarding President Bush’s decrease in discussing his faith. The Boston Globe (12/13) quoted him regarding how a criminal case might affect Mike Huckabee’s presidential bid.

Orin Kerr, associate professor of law, was quoted on CNET News (12/14) regarding U.S. v. Boucher, a case concerning whether a criminal defendant can be forced to give his password to gain access to evidence and in The Modesto Bee (12/13) regarding unsecured Wi-Fi Networks.

Steven Knapp, president of the university, was interviewed for an article in The Washington Post (12/3) regarding his plans for the school, his views on higher education and the gift of sheep he received to honor his inauguration. President Knapp appeared on Fox Business Channel (12/14) to discuss the price of higher education in an interview titled, “Fueling Tuition.”

John Logsdon, research professor of political science and international affairs, was quoted on newspress.com (12/5) regarding Congress’s push to continue support of the space shuttle system through 2010.

Richard W Longstreth, director of the graduate program in historic preservation and professor of American studies, was quoted in The Washington Examiner (12/6) and on blog.washingtonpost.com (12/7) regarding the architecture of Third Church of Christ, Scientist, in an article regarding a D.C. preservation board giving it historic landmark status.

Rachel Moon, associate professor of pediatrics, was quoted in Northern California’s East Bay Business Times (12/10) regarding her co-leading a campaign to prevent infant death due to unsafe sleep practices.

Faye Moskowitz, professor of English, was interviewed for an article posted on dcist.com (12/5).

Seyyed Hossein Nasr, University Professor of Islamic studies, was quoted in the Christian Science Monitor (12/5) regarding Sufism.

Susan Phillips, dean of the school of business and professor of finance, was noted in The Wall Street Journal (12/14) regarding her position on a five-person committee charged with safeguarding Dow Jones' editorial independence and integrity.

Jerrold Post, professor of political psychology & international affairs, of psychology & behavioral science, was noted on publishersweekly.com (12/3) in a review of his book, The Mind of the Terrorist: The Psychology of Terrorism from the IRA to Al-Qaeda.
Marsha Regenstein, assistant research professor of health policy, was quoted on include.nurse.com (12/3) regarding a nationwide project to help hospitals improve their language services for patients with limited English proficiency.

Peter Rollberg, chair of the department of Romance, German, and Slavic language & literature and associate professor of Slavic languages, film studies and international affairs, was interviewed for an article posted on Express (12/10) regarding American pop star Dean Reed.

Jeffrey Rosen, professor of law, was quoted on the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette (12/10) regarding the downside of surveillance.

Walter Rowe, professor of forensic sciences, was quoted in North Carolina’s News & Observer (12/1) regarding firearms analysis in an article covering an investigation into 3 homicides in Raleigh.

Stephen Saltzburg, director of the litigation and dispute resolution program and Wallace and Beverley Woodbury University Professor of Law was quoted on law.com (12/4) regarding citing blogs in a change-of-venue motion in a National Law Journal article regarding U.S. v. Boyd. The Boston Globe (12/15) quoted him regarding a new regulation imposed upon the Judge Advocate General corps.

Tracy Schario, director of media relations, was quoted in the University of Wisconsin Badger Herald (12/6) regarding an incident in which a student drew swastikas on campus in an article regarding bias crimes.

David Shambaugh, professor of political science and international affairs, wrote an article originally published in International Herald Tribune and posted on yaleglobal.yale.edu (12/7) regarding Europe-China relations. Computerworld (12/5) quoted him regarding privacy on Facebook in an article regarding the site’s controversial Beacon advertising system.

Lee Sigelman, professor of political science, was quoted in the Arkansas News Bureau (12/6) regarding Fred Thompson’s campaign in an article regarding Mike Huckabee’s presidential bid.

Daniel Solove, associate professor of law, was quoted on computerworld.com (12/5) regarding free speech in an article regarding the arrest of a Wisconsin high school teacher. Law.com (12/1) posted a review of his book, The Future of Reputation: Gossip, Rumor and Privacy on the Internet.

Sonia Suter, associate professor of law, was quoted in the Chicago Tribune (12/7) regarding ethical obligations involved in obtaining one’s own genetic information.

Michael Taylor, research professor of health policy, was quoted in The Washington Post (12/4) regarding food safety.

Jonathan Turley, J.B. and Maurice C. Shapiro Professor of Public Service, was quoted in (12/5) regarding a motion for more time in a federal court jurisdiction in an article regarding a

Robert Tuttle, professor of law and D.R.& S Kirschner Berz Research Professor of Law and Religion, was quoted in The New York Times (12/4) regarding a series of rulings over the last year reinforcing laws that bar government money from promoting religion.