Year in Review
As September rolled around and classes began, students resumed studying outside in sun-larding September days and "getting better into the swing" of classes.

The International Student Society kicked off the year with their Garden Party. The Marvin Center was the scene for an inventive party. Aboard the SS Marvin Center, students tempted their luck at a casino, enjoyed the music of Tunjibond and Formula, participated in an improvisation with Odd Cargo, and had chances to win many prizes.

An Activities Fair was held in the courtyard of the Marvin Center, where student groups displayed their finesse in soliciting for new members. GW moved full steam ahead into the coming year.
This year's Program Board sponsored Fall Fest, "The Fall of Rome," was complete with Trojan Soldiers and Roman baths. A dunk tank where students were able to attempt dunking their student leaders in freezing cold water was one of the attractions. Another favored attraction was a great grape mash, where one got to feel like an ancient Roman, and squish his toes in grapes. Music surged from the bands - New Rhythm and Blues Quartet and the Good Guys. Food?! Food?! Try pretzels, cotton candy, popcorn, and soda to suit your taste. The quad was decoratively designed in balloons and color, as gladiators battled. The moon bounce as well as the entire event was enjoyed by all.
Ex-Mayor of Washington D.C. spoke on campus to discuss the district's problems. He issued his concern over the city not being designated any representatives or senators, and discussed statehood for the district. Barry also addressed the problems that Washington public schools are faced with due to their need for additional monies. Racism was also addressed in his report and he stated that racial barriers of intolerance and misunderstanding can be broken.

In a "Town Meeting" held at George's, students voiced their complaints about the University's food service, academic advising, financial aid, cosmetic versus academic priorities and administrative priorities to the Vice President for Student and Academic Affairs Robert Chernak. Chernak said he took many pages of notes and was intent on investigating the problems brought to his attention.

Midnight Oil played to a raging audience in the Smith Center on September 21. The ticket holders got more for their money's worth. The Midnight Oil crew - headed by Garrett, with guitarist Martin Rotsey, Bones Hillina on bass, Jim Moginie on both keys and guitar and drummer Rob Hirsh played the crowd's favorite tunes, including the title track hit "Blue Sky Mining." Garult ranted about the Middle East crisis, the environment, and government officials as the audience got pumped and ready for action.
"The Strategic Shift in Soviet Foreign Policy" was the title of the panel issued to discuss that topic. Anatoly B. Mitropolsky, an economic affairs specialist and member of the Christian Democratic Party in the Soviet Union, said the Gulf Crisis has accelerated improvements in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. However Ray Cline, chairman of the U.S. Global Strategy Council, represented the United States into discussion. He claimed the situation within the Soviet Union was not improving. Both panelists did acknowledge that the situation in the Soviet Union is not a good one.

Armenians must elect public officials who can combat the major domestic problems of the Post Cold War society. Alexandria Mayor Jim Moran (D-Va) proclaimed at the GW College Democrats sponsored event. Moran criticized those people who hoard resources and do not care about the masses of sick and impoverished people. Moran served on Alexandria’s city council for ten years and has been mayor for four years.

The forum on the First Amendment sparked debate, flag burning, record banning, and art funding were scrutinized by both liberals and conservative panelists. It became an argument between two lines - one line believing that first amendment maintaining that the protection of the youth wasn't the issue, rather the issue was about fear and power.

Opening Convocation brought with it this year President Stephen Joel Trachtenburg outlining seven issues he planned to address this year. The Keter Betts New Orleans Band led the procession of faculty, administrators, and representatives of more than 50 student organizations around campus. Following the speeches, the University Troubadors performed a medley of Sesame Street songs and led a singing of the Alma Mater. A reception in the University Yard followed the ceremonies.

"Back to Life, Back To Reality."
— Soul II Soul
Reverend Jesse Jackson addressed racism and the "new world order" at a speech rendered this month at GW. The United States needs to adhere to five principles when establishing a policy in creating a new world order - obeying international law, committing to determination, fighting for human rights, providing for economic justice, and developing global harmony, reflected Jackson at the event sponsored by the GW College Democrats, the Black Peoples' Union, and the Progressive Student Union. Jackson also cited that the sanctions imposed on Iraq should have been based on morality, not on economics. He also spoke on issues of racism, South Africa, the Iraqi crisis, and DC statehood.

Another celebrity also appearing at GW this month was Hunter S. Thompson. "I'm here to talk about, uh... I'm not sure... what I don't do is make speeches, what I do is talk. A little social intercourse. Speak about whatever bothers you," cited Thompson. With that, he opened the floor up to questions. Drugs, the Middle East crisis, his arrest on charges of sex, drugs, bombs, and violence - all of the above were rapidly discussed during this Program Board sponsored event.

Lai Lai Hayslip also spoke on campus during October. She discussed her book When Heaven and Earth Change Place, soon to be released on film. Her experiences in Vietnam as a citizen, was her point of concentration.
At a fashion show sponsored by Mademoiselle magazine and the Office of Campus Life, George Washington University students were able to show off their poise and modeling talent. Mademoiselle came to campus equipped with their special gift bags and exciting Benetton clothing allowing GW students, male and female, to participate not only watch. The evening was full of co-ordinated plaids, stripes, solids in different materials—wool, silk, and velvet among others.

The Residence Hall Association also brought their plant sale back to the campus. Selling all sorts of plants, and allowing students to decorate their apartments and residence hall rooms was their aim.

Another political speaker, Senator Chuck Robb (D-Va) was also highlighted this year. He spoke on the current budget crisis, what is being done on Capital Hill to solve it, and ways in which to improve the government of the United States. Robb believes that we have gotten ourselves into a gridlock over a resolution of the budget problem and that the government is not doing a good job in meeting its responsibilities to the people. Working on problems, rather than masking them, is the way to create a better government, according to this senator.

“I take my shirt off and pray.”
We’re coming up on reelection day.”

Performing at the Smith Center, Natalie Merchant and the rest of the 10,000 Maniacs declared war on our government, society, and their own style of music. The 10,000 Maniacs devoted much of the Program Board sponsored concert to songs from their latest release, "Hope Chest", mainly composed of previously unreleased songs.

It was the old songs that led to an energetic and uncharacteristic performance from the generally mellow and socially conscious band.

Throughout the performance, Merchant pushed her causes - the Children's Defense Fund and House of Ruth's women's shelter in the District - while doing her required flopping and spinning on stage that fans have become accustomed to.
The Kuwaiti Ambassador to the United States, Sheikh Saud Nasir Al-Sabah, called the Iraqi invasion of his country the worst violation to human rights since the 1930's. Al-Sabah has served as ambassador to the US since 1981 and is also the non-resident ambassador to Canada and Venezuela. He has served in Kuwait's Ministry of Foreign Affairs since 1969. The ambassador condemned the Iraqi propaganda and misinformation about the invasion. He also stated that he was confident that the Iraqis would be expelled from Kuwait because of the support his country has received.

Many Asian groups came together to dance and party in the Asian Express. The benefits of the dance were donated to UNICEF, and all who attended had a good time.

The Israeli-American lobby - not oil, Kuwaiti sovereignty, of Saudi Arabia is the reason for American intervention in the Middle East charged Mohamed Al-Mashat, the Iraqi Ambassador to the United States. He stated that Iraq's reasons for invading Kuwait are that Iraq has a historical claim on Kuwait, and Iraq sees Kuwait as "waging an economic war" by violating an oil production quota set by OPEC. Prior to the event sponsored by the GW Program Board, many student groups protested.

The Affirmative Action Forum sparked controversy and fire. As members from the Black Peoples' Union and the Young Americans For Freedom squared off to debate, issues of racism, job opportunities, and education hit the floor. The audience engaged in the debate, questioning the panelists on their opinions and ideas. The panelists also directed questions to their opposition. BPU representatives said that YAF members implied a negative feeling about affirmative action because it causes reverse discrimination. After the questioning period, each group was allowed to make summary statements.
The Freedom Day 1990 Committee at GW commemorated the powerful event of the Berlin Wall being knocked down on the University Yard.

The committee constructed a 150 foot replica of the Berlin Wall from cardboard boxes and then let passersbys graffit the creation with various slogans. The slogans revolved around the freedom and democracy movements and also reflected the ideology of varied political factions. It was created to celebrate victory in Eastern Europe, but also to call attention to the problem that still remains there.

A wheelchair was placed in the Market Square this month for the "Bury the Wheelchair" program. The goal of the program was to fill the box encasing the wheelchair with monetary donations. The program was part of the Superdance sponsored by the GW Residence Hall Association. The project was to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

El Salvador still requires the support of the US government to prevent a coup echoed El Salvadorian ambassador Miguel Salaverria. Salaverria was brought to campus by the Young Americans For Freedom, where he outlined the objectives and needs of El Salvador. Also, he stressed the importance of peace for the El Salvadorian government while following the rites of democracy. The ambassador also stated that El Salvador uses the US as a role model for forming their democracy.
The Reserve Officers Training Corps Detachment 136 and GWU Aerospace Association presented a "Prisoners of War/missing in Action" flag to GW President Stephen Joel Trachtenberg. With Veterans Day and Thanksgiving approaching, the presentation was to reassure people that the men and women are not forgotten.

The "Books not Bricks" demonstration, sponsored by the Progressive Student Union brought attention to the brick controversy on campus. It succeeded in the goal of allowing a graduation senior to choose whether they want their name engraved in a decorative brick or placed in a new book for the Gelman Library. The students protested in front of Rice Hall and met with Trachtenberg for a discussion.

With December rolling around, students at GW began to “crack their books” in preparation for finals and the end of the semester.

The Residence Hall Association held the second annual Winter Ball at the Mayflower Hotel in conjunction with American University. The evening was full of fun, entertainment, dancing, and food.

time of the year."

— Bing Crosby
The month of January was filled with mixed emotions for the students of GW. Although anxious because of the start of the US involvement in the Gulf War, students on campus continued to share good times with their friends.

The Superdance highlighted this month's activities. This event, a 28-hour dance marathon to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, was sponsored by the Residence Hall Association. Approximately 35 individual dancers and 19 teams participated this year. The official song of the 1991 Superdance, "Do You Want To Dance," by the Beach Boys, kicked off the event.

The Moribound Brothers performed new versions of 70's music in the Rat during 70's week this month. The week long events, sponsored by the GW Program Board, brought back the era of polyester, bell bottoms, disco balls, Watergate, arts and crafts, white suits, and gold chains. A recreation of a disco in Market Square, a cultural discussion of the Soviet movements of the 70's, and a tie-dye fest highlighted the events of the week.

“I am proud to be an American,
"where at least I know I'm free."

The month of February was filled with activities that all students on campus could participate. Homecoming week, events for Black History Month, campus elections, political speakers—it all kept GW bustling with excitement.

Homecoming events this year attracted many students. A brunch, talent show and block party kept students spirited as they shared a GW comradesy. The men's basketball team played Rhode Island as GW's students jammed into the Smith Center. Homecoming week activities were topped off by the traditional dinner and dance.

Mr. Jesse McDade, a black historian, spoke on the issue of racism. For this serious issue, the speaker used a light-hearted approach to inform his listeners about ongoing struggles.

The university's Program Board sponsored the program "Charge d'affaires of Lithuania to the United States." Mr. Stasys Lozoraitis spoke on living conditions in Lithuania, the most recent Soviet crackdown in Vilnius, and other matters of this oppressed Baltic state. In addition, he turned to the audience, and asked for their views on what course Lithuania should follow to gain her independence.
Student elections came once again in full force to campus this year. Posters supporting one candidate or another decorated the Quad, G street, the Marvin Center... Student forums were held and all of the candidates could be seen eagerly shaking hands with their perspective voters.

The results? Kyle Farmbry was elected the 1991-1992 academic year Student Association President and Dave Parker was re-elected Vice President of Student Affairs.
The Suitcase Party, jointly sponsored by the Black People's Union and the Residence Hall Association, went over very well this year. Music, fun, and a free trip to New Orleans were the main attractions for the event.

Ed Meese spoke on campus this month to an enthused audience. He proclaimed that President Bush was making the right decision to enter the war in the Gulf. He also declared that the "Reagan buildup" of arms was now paying off. However, he cautioned the listeners about the consequences that might occur if the forces are kept built up.

John Frohenmeyer spoke to his audience in reference to the arts. He traced the history of the artistic controversy from the Enlightenment to the present time. The American value system has changed, he proclaimed. The James Joyce Ulysses Trial was a reference to a case of tested tradition.
Sarah Brady, the wife of James Brady, former White House Press Secretary to Ronald Reagan, spoke on the issue of handgun control laws. Brady stated that Handgun Control Incorporated does not believe in banning or doing away with guns, but believes in rational, reasonable laws that can be passed to be used for control.

Martha's Marathon of Birthday Bargains went on smoothly in February. Auction items are given by local businesses and university personalities and help to raise money for housing scholarships. This year they raised over 20,000 dollars for the cause.

"If you knew your history then..."
you would know where you’re coming from."

Bob Marley
The Replacements blew through GW in the month of March. They sang such favorites as "Waitress in the Sky," "Merry Go Round," and "Skyway" to their captivated audience. The bass player made an unsuccessful attempt to sing; however, the crowd was very pleased by it. "All Shoot Down," the most recent album by the band was the source for much of the material played during this jamming time.
Former President of the United States Ronald Reagan was given an honorary degree in GW's Lisner Auditorium. In addition, a wing of the GW Hospital emergency room was dedicated to him. Lisner was filled to capacity as our former president gave his speech exonerating GW and the University Hospital. The acknowledgement of the hospital personnel that cared for him after he was shot 10 years ago, and a touching moment of the introduction of the nurse that held the President's hand in the ICU moved the audience. Ronald Reagan also spoke of the importance of the Brady Bill for handgun control and the importance of education in today's society.

Greek Week brought together many members of the Greek society through games, skits, and competitions. Individual fraternity and sorority letters were a constant sight as each member strove to put their group ahead of all others.

Eugene McCarthy also spoke on campus during the month of March. He stated that the United States' military is becoming a mercenary military, and that he feared the youth of this country are becoming too conservative.
things aren't what they used to be“

Robert Palmer
Chalk In was held this March on H street. Students graffitied the sidewalks and the street with colorful sayings and drawings to express their feelings of the time. Many designs and shapes were drawn using colorful chalk.

The annual Rat Jam, held in George's Rathskellar, attracted many students. The bands competed against one another for the spot of opening band at the Spring Thing concert later on in the month of April.

The program "Europe to 2000," sponsored by the GW Program Board informed students of the changes occurring in Europe. The panel represented many factions of the European community in order to present diverse information.
The annual International Dinner was a fun time for all. Music, food, international personalities, and dancing incorporated into a dynamic, colorful setting led to an international feeling. Each country, represented by their ambassador, could be seen in the spectrum of the different cultural flavors. Students viewed national dances, exotic foods, and mingled with dignitaries.

Senior Week was experienced by most of the graduating seniors this year at GW. A Milo's Happy Hour entailed free pizza and drink specials. Students mingled with their college friends as well as those they may not have seen since freshman year. In any case, pizza was eaten, memories were shared, and discussions about what the future holds took place.

The weather was perfect, just right for a picnic held on the Mall. Seniors took the time to play volleyball, eat hot dogs, and just relax, as graduation day rapidly approached.
The Graduation Gala was a wonderful time for graduating students and their families. Market Square held a jazz band, playing popular songs for those who wanted to dance. The ballroom was filled with a Latin aura due to the Spanish music and accompanying food. Parents and Students enjoyed the evening together.

The Senior Brunch was another activity included in Senior Week this year. Seniors had the chance to once again eat their favorite brunch foods and "hang out with their friends."
On May 12, 1991, The George Washington University graduated its class of seniors. Dressed in cap and gown, this year's class received their diplomas on Mother's Day. Lisner Auditorium and the Smith Center held the participants and the speakers on this long awaited day. The papers that were written, the exams that were taken, the final projects that were turned in - they all finally paid off on Graduation Day. Anxiety about what the future holds and happiness because of their accomplishments stood out on the faces of all graduates.
After the graduation exercises, the recent graduates could be seen posing for pictures with friends, family, and faculty. Introductions were finally made, tales of past experiences were told, and future phone numbers and addresses were exchanged. The mood was light-hearted and happy as everyone said their goodbyes. Yet, the mood was sad as the graduates realized their reign at GW was finished and the next step in their lives was near.

The GW Residence Hall Association has become a major organization on our campus in recent years. RHA sponsors and co-sponsors many of the events taking place throughout the year. During the first semester, RHA provided students with an opportunity to buy plants in October, as well as attend an Artists in Residence art show. During the month of November, Cultural Appreciation Week was celebrated throughout the halls. In December, students were given the chance to attend a Winter Ball at the Mayflower Hotel. In January, RHA jumped into the new semester by sponsoring the Superdance. Two of RHA's major events of the school year took place in February. The Suitcase Party sent two students to New Orleans and Martha's Marathon of Birthday Bargains raised money for housing scholarships. Finally, in April, RHA and Program Board co-sponsored "Spring Thing".

RHA has developed two new programs that were introduced into the residence halls this year. The first is the International Residents Support Network, which helps those students adjust to life in their new "homes". The second program is the National Residence Hall Honorary, which recognizes Resident and Resident Assistant of the Month for outstanding contributions to the residence halls.

1990-91 is the second year in a row for the GW RHA to win the title "School of the Year" from the North Atlantic Affiliate of the National Association of College and University Residence Halls. They are competing with six other schools nationwide for the National School of the Year Award.

Sports
CONGRATULATIONS to the Men's Basketball team for their 19-12 record; the most wins for GW since the 1975-76 season. The Colonials advanced to a post-season tournament for the first time in 30 years by making the National Invitational Tournament. GW came within a game of the NCAA tournament, losing to Penn State in the finals of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

HEAD COACH: Mike Jarvis
CONGRATULATIONS to the Women's Basketball team for their 23-7 record and reaching the second round of the NCAA tournament, where they lost to North Carolina State. The team had its finest season in the 16 year history of the program as it attained its first top-25 ranking in its history. Head coach Joe McKeown was also named as the Atlantic 10 "Coach of the Year".

*WITH A NEW TWIST
Well, I guess it is time to say goodbye. I've spent a lot of time with the Cherry Tree - all four years that I've been at GW - and I'm very proud of what I have produced. However, I cannot end here without thanking everyone who has supported me while I've been at school. I'll have to start with my family. A million thanks go out to my Mom, Dad, and Ginnie - I love you all very much, thanks for being there! Next, I would like to thank all of my friends - college would not have been the same without you: Lori, Natalie, Renny, Kim, Kathy, Laura, Laurie, Jen, Julia, Jen, Susan, Claudine, Cyndi, Chris, Alex, Michele, Heather, and Kathleen (basically the whole Dee Gee crew). In addition, I certainly would not have been able to complete the book without Mohab and Shazia - good luck next year and know that I will miss you both. Finally, there is one person left, who I did not forget about, that is very special to me and has made my senior year amazing - thank you for all of your love and support John, I could not have done it without you!

Now that I have gotten through all of the thank you’s, I would like share some of my GW memories: Thurston Hall (925 with Debby and Amy), Hearts, Bread and Cheese Bar, The Pre-Med Major, Chemistry, Mitchell Hall, My “Roommate”, Rhonda the Rat, Aspen, Pittsburgh (especially the “O”), concerts, Milton Hall, The Rooster, Delta Gamma (especially sunshines and chapter), The Psychology Major, Chocolate Chip Cookies at the Rat, Summer Staff (especially road trips and movie nights), August 26/Ghost, Italian Class, Girl Scout Cookies, Ben and Jerry’s, The Purple Chanel Shoes, New Hampshire, Alabama, Graduation. I've only touched on a few, but all of my memories are good ones! As I finally come to an end, there is just one more thing that I have to say ... "Nothing left to do but smile, smile, smile." (Grateful Dead)

To MICHÉLE LYONS,
Congratulations on your graduation.
It seems such a short time since joy was your college and wonder, your professor.

Love,

Dear Jen,
We’re so proud of you. You have grown into a bright, beautiful young woman and we know you will succeed with your plans.
We love you,
Mom, Dad, Rob, and Grandma.
To my darling daughter, Lisa Marni, who has been a continuing source of pride and joy.

Your loving father.
To you, Lisa Marni
The most wonderful and best daughter in this world.
All my love forever,
Mom

To Michelle and her friends,
May all your wishes and dreams turn into incredibly successful realities!
With all our love,
Mom, Dad, and Erica
The Gutmans

To our wonderful daughter and sister, Jennifer Frankel,
May all your tomorrows be as happy and successful as your yesterdays. We're very proud of you.
Love,
Mom, Dad, and David

The Man Behind The Glass
When you get what you want in the struggle for self,
And the world makes you king for a day,
Just go to the mirror and look at yourself,
And see what THAT man has to say.
For it isn't your father or mother or wife,
Whose judgment upon you must pass,
The fellow whose verdict counts the most in your life
Is the one staring back from the glass.
Yet people might think you're a straight-shootin' chum,
And call you a wonderful guy,
But the man in the glass says you're only a bum.
If you can't look him straight in the eye.
He's the fellow to please, never mind all the rest,
For he's with you clear up to the end.
And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test
If the guy in the glass is your friend.
You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years.
And get pats on the back as you pass.
But your final reward will be heartache and tears
If you've cheated the man in the glass.

Congratulations to Paul Bisaccia and the Class of 1991.
Love always, Mom, Dad, and Nancy

To Debbie Grika -
You have climbed to the top of the mountain, now you can reach for the stars.
With love and pride,
Mom and Dad

WORDS OF WISDOM...
from the mouths of a few graduates, who would like to leave you with their thoughts...

BEN GOLDMAN...
"I believe in the soul, the cock, the pussy, the small of a woman's back, the hanging curve ball, high fiber, good scotch, that the novels of Susan Sontag are self-indulgent overrated crap, I believe Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone, I believe there ought to be a constitutional amendment outlawing astroturf and the designated hitter, I believe in the sweet spot, soft core porn, opening your presents Christmas morning rather than Christmas Eve, and I believe in long, slow, wet kisses that last three days."
Crash Davis (from the film Bull Durham)

KAREN C. FEENEY...
Objective secured, we're outa here!!!
"Friendship is the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person, having neither to weigh thoughts nor to measure words."
George Elliot
"The old pattern of my life is shattered. It hangs around me in shreds. Great things are going to happen from this. I feel the fermentation."
Anais Nin (Henry and June)

DENISE FUSELIER...
"The quality of a person's life is in direct proportion to their commitment to excellence, regardless of their chosen field of endeavor."
Vince T. Lombardi
"The highest reward for a person's toil is not what they get for it, but what they become by it."
John Ruskin

JILL RABINO...
"Hi, I'm Jill S. Rabino and I have THE FUNNIEST STORY."

MICHELLE POTTER...
"In a cold world you need your friends to keep you warm."
"WOW!"

CHRISTOPHER SPERON...
"Don't give up!"

MICHELE REMILLARD...
"WELL, you can just settle down."
