Similes of the Iliad Book 1 (A)

SUMMARY

```
Short Clauses and Phrases:
    #1 (47) [Apollo \approx night]
    #2 (104) [Agamemnon's eyes \approx blazing fire]
    #3* (249) [Nestor's voice \approx honey]
    #4 (359) [Thetis \approx mist]
```

SIMILES

The arrows rattled on the shoulders of the angry [god Apollo] / as he moved, and he came like the night.
[Apollo $\approx$ night] Narrator

***

When [Calchas] had thus spoken, he sat down, and among them arose / the warrior, son of Atreus, wide-ruling Agamemnon, / deeply troubled. With rage his black heart was wholly / filled, and his eyes were like blazing fire.
[Agamemnon's eyes $\approx$ blazing fire] Narrator
NB: Iliad Bk 1 #2 (104) = Odyssey Bk 4 #6 (662)
***

From whose tongue flowed speech sweeter than honey
[Nestor's voice $\approx$ honey] Narrator about Nestor
***

And speedily [Thetis] came forth from the grey sea like a mist. [Thetis $\approx$ mist] Narrator

[^0]For brief comments about these similes see D. Feeney 2014.

Similes of the Iliad Book 2 (B)

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1 (87) [tribes of Argives $\approx$ tribes of bees]
\#2 (144) [aroused assembly $\approx$ long waves lashed by winds]
\#3 (147) [whole assembly stirred $\approx$ field of grain stirred by the wind]
\#5 (209) [clamor of army $\approx$ thunder of wave]
\#7* (326) [we will take Troy after 9 years $\approx$ serpent devoured 9 sparrows]
\#9 (394) [shouting Argives $\approx$ crashing wave]
\#10 (455) [dazzling gleam of bronze $\approx$ glare of a consuming fire]
\#11 (459) [many tribes of Achaeans $\approx$ many tribes of birds]
\#13 (469) [numerous Achaeans $\approx$ numerous tribes of flies]
\#14 (474) [Achaean leaders $\approx$ goatherds]
\#15 (480) [Agamemnon to warriors $\approx$ bull to cattle]
\#19 (781) [earth groaning under the feet of the army $\approx$ earth groaning under Zeus's lashing]

Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#4 (190) [an Achaean leader NOT $\approx$ coward]
\#6 (289) [Argives $\approx$ little children and widows]
\#8* (337) [Argives $\approx$ little boys]
\#12 (468) [numberless Achaeans $\approx$ leaves and flowers in season]
\#16 (754) [Titaressus river $\approx$ olive oil]
\#17 (764) [Eumelas' horses $\approx$ birds]
\#18 (780) [marching Achaean army $\approx$ fire]
\#20 (800) [Achaean army $\approx$ leaves or sand]
\#21 (872) [Nastes decked in gold ornaments $\approx$ a girl]

1 (87)

 aï $\mu \varepsilon ́ v \tau^{\prime}$ हैvӨa ä $\lambda ı \varsigma ~ п \varepsilon п о т \eta ́ a t a ı, ~ a i ̈ ~ \delta \varepsilon ́ ~ t \varepsilon ~ ह ै v Ө a: ~$ 90

[^1]But the armies rushed forward, / just like thick tribes of bees / that come from some hollow rock ever anew / and fly in clusters over the spring flowers, / some darting en masse here, others there; / even so did their many tribes march in line from ships and huts / in squads before the broad shore / to the assembly.
[tribes of Argives $\approx$ tribes of bees] Narrator

See Muellner 1990:66, Feeney 2014:190-194.
***
 móvtou 'lkapíoıo, tà $\mu \varepsilon ́ v$ t' Eûpós т $\varepsilon$ Nótos т $\varepsilon$ 145

The assembly was stirred like the long waves of the sea, the Icarian sea, when east wind and south wind arise darting down from Father Zeus' clouds. [aroused assembly $\approx$ long waves lashed by winds] Narrator NB фض̀ = $̈ \varsigma$
***

 150 íбтat’ áعıро $\mu$ र́vŋ:

As when Zephyrus arrives / rushing rapidly, he stirs a deep field of grain and causes the ears of grain to droop, / even so their whole assembly was stirred; with a loud cry / they rushed towards the ships, and the dust from under their feet rose. [whole assembly stirred $\approx$ field of grain stirred by the wind] Narrator ***

190
'Dear sir, it is not right to threaten you as if you were a coward.' [an Achaean leader NOT $\approx$ coward] Odysseus ***

Thus masterfully did he range through the army, and they / rushed back to the place of assembly from their ships and huts / with a clamor, as when a wave of the loudresounding sea / thunders on the long beach, and the sea roars.
[clamor of army $\approx$ thunder of wave] Narrator

[^2] à $\lambda \lambda \eta ́ \lambda o ı \sigma ı v ~ o ́ \delta u ́ p o v t a ı ~ o i ̂ k o v ~ \delta દ ̀ ~ v \varepsilon ́ \varepsilon \sigma \theta a ı . ~$
'For like little children or widowed women / [the Argives] wail to one another in longing to return home.'
[Argives $\approx$ little children and widows] Odysseus

Then a great portent appeared: a serpent, blood-red on the back, / terrible, which the Olympian himself had sent forth to the light, / glided from beneath the altar and darted to the plane-tree.

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { ท̇ } \mu i ̂ v \mu \varepsilon ̀ v \text { tóठ' }
\end{aligned}
$$

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { 7* (326) } \quad \text { ©́ oûtoç катà téкva фáүع otpouӨoîo кaì aútク̀v }
\end{aligned}
$$

'To us Zeus the counsellor has showed this great sign, / late in coming, late in fulfillment, whose fame shall never perish. / Just as this <serpent> devoured the sparrow's little ones and [the mother] herself, / eight, and the mother that bore the children was the ninth, / so shall we make war here for so many years, / but in the tenth we take the broad-wayed city.'
[we will take Troy after 9 years $\approx$ serpent devoured 9 sparrows] Calchas
Cf. the bird omen in Book 12 #7 (219), also turned into a simile.
***

'Enough! You are holding assembly like little boys / that care not for deeds of war.' [Argives $\approx$ little boys] Nestor to the Argives
***

 395

[^3]So [Agamemnon] spoke, and the Argives shouted loudly as when a wave / [crashes] against a high headland, when the south wind comes and stirs / it against a jutting crag that is never left by the waves / of all the winds that come from this side or from that. [shouting Argives $\approx$ crashing wave] Narrator

Even as a consuming fire makes an immense forest blaze / on the peaks of a mountain, and from afar its glare is visible, / even so, as they marched forth, from their innumerable bronze / the dazzling gleam went up through the sky to the heavens. [dazzling gleam of bronze $\approx$ glare of a consuming fire] Narrator

’Ađí $\omega$ ह́v $\lambda \varepsilon ı \mu \hat{v ı}$ Kaü $\sigma$ рíou á $\mu ф i ̀ ~ \rho ́ \varepsilon ́ \varepsilon Ө \rho a ~$ غ́ৎ пєठ́íov прохє́ovto $\Sigma к а \mu a ́ v \delta \rho ı v$.

And as the many tribes of winged birds, / geese or cranes or long-necked swans / on an Asian meadow by the streams of the Kayster, / flutter this way and that, glorying in their wings, / and alight with loud shrieks, and the meadow resounds; / even so the many tribes <of Achaeans> poured forth from ships and huts / onto the plain of Scamander.
[many tribes <of Achaeans> $\approx$ many tribes of birds] Narrator
See Muellner 1990:62.
***

12 (468) $\quad$ U
So [the Achaeans] took their stand in the flowery meadow of Scamander, / numberless, as are the leaves and the flowers in season. [numberless Achaeans $\approx$ leaves and flowers in season] Narrator

See Muellner 1990:62.

***

[^4]

Even as numerous dense tribes of flies / that swarm to and fro throughout the sheep fold / in the season of spring, when the milk splashes in the pails, / even in such numbers stood the long-haired Achaeans / upon the plain against the Trojans, eager to destroy them.
[numerous Achaeans $\approx$ numerous tribes of flies] Narrator
Cf. 4.433-435 and 16.641-643 (on which see T. Neal 2006)
***
 ค̇ $\varepsilon i ̂ a ~ \delta ı a к \rho i ́ v \omega \sigma ı v ~ \varepsilon ́ п \varepsilon i ́ ~ к \varepsilon ~ v о \mu @ ̂ ~ \mu ı ү \varepsilon ́ \omega \sigma ı v, ~$ 475

And even as goatherds separate easily the wide-scattered flocks of goats, / when they mingle in the pasture, / so their leaders marshalled them on this side and on that / to enter into the battle.
[Achaean leaders $\approx$ goatherds] Narrator

Even as an ox among the herd is pre-eminent among all, a bull, as he is conspicuous among the gathering cattle, even so Zeus made the son of Atreus on that day / conspicuous among many, and pre-eminent among the warriors.
[Agamemnon to warriors $\approx$ bull to cattle] Narrator
***

 755

Yet he <the Titaressus river> does not mingle with the silver eddies of Peneius, / but flows on over his waters like olive oil; / for he is a branch of the water of Styx, the dread river of oath.
[Titaressus river $\approx$ olive oil] Narrator
***

[^5]Of horses best by far were the mares of the son of Pheres, / those that Eumelas drove, swift as birds, with like hair, of the same age, equal in height to a hair. [Eumelas' horses $\approx$ birds] Narrator

So they <Achaean army> marched then as if all the land were swept with fire. [marching Achaean army $\approx$ fire] Narrator غ́pxoućvตv.

And the earth groaned beneath them, as beneath Zeus who delights in the thunderbolt / in his wrath, when he lashes the earth about Typhoeus / in the country of the Arimi, where men say is the couch of Typhoeus. / Even so the earth groaned greatly beneath their feet as they went.
[earth groaning under the feet of the army $\approx$ earth groaning under Zeus' lashing] Narrator

See Lowell, 2011:17-63.
***

800

'But never yet have I seen an army so fine and so great; / for they are most like to leaves or sands, / as they march over the plain to fight against the city.' [Achaean army ~ leaves or sand] Iris disguised as Polites ***

 875

Amphimachus and Nastes led them, Nastes and Amphimachus, the glorious sons of Nomion. / And he came to the war all decked with gold, like a girl, / fool that he was;

[^6]but his gold in no way prevented bitter destruction. / He was slain beneath the hands of the swift-footed son of Aeacus / in the river; and fiery-hearted Achilles took the gold. [Nastes decked in gold ornaments $\approx$ a girl] Narrator

Similar Rhetorical Figures

Transformations and Disguises:

The dream as Nestor:

 Néбторı, тóv $\dot{a} \alpha \mu a ́ \lambda ı \sigma t a ~ ү \varepsilon \rho o ́ v t \omega v ~ \tau i ̂ ’ ’ ~ ' A ү a \mu \varepsilon ́ \mu v \omega v: ~$

[The Dream] stood over the head [of Agamemnon] like the son of Neleus / Nestor, whom above all elders Agamemnon held in honor / likening himself to him the divine dream spoke.

57*

And most of all it was like divine Nestor / in form and size and build.
***
Athena as a herald:

And by his side flashing-eyed Athena / in the likeness of a herald commanded the army to keep silent.
***
Iris as Polites:

And swift-footed Iris stood near and spoke to them; / and she made her voice like that of Polites, son of Priam, / who used to sit as a sentinel of the Trojans, trusting in his fleetness of foot, / on the topmost part of the barrow of aged Aesyetes, / waiting until the Achaeans should sally forth from their ships. Likening herself to him swifted-footed Iris spoke to [Priam].
[Iris $\approx$ Polites (in voice)]

[^7]
Divine Comparisons：

 $\Delta$ uì $\mu$ へ̂tıv átá入avtov（407＊）．
 ő $\mu \mu$ ата каі̀ кєфа入ウ̀v

Lord Agamemnon among them／his eyes and head like Zeus who hurls the thunderbolt，／his waist like Ares and his chest like Poseidon．
［Agamemnon $\approx$ Zeus（eyes and head），Ares（waist），Poseidon（chest）］Narrator
Lee counts this as a simile．

Similes of the Iliad Book 3 （Г）

SUMMARY

Scenes：

\＃2（3）［shrieking Trojans $\approx$ shrieking cranes］
\＃3（10）［dense dust $\approx$ fog］
\＃6（23）［Menelaus to Paris $\approx$ lion to stag or goat］
\＃7（33）［Alexander（Paris）seeing Menelaus $\approx$ a man who sees a snake］
\＃8（60）［Hector＇s heart $\approx$ axe］
\＃9（151）［speakers（leaders of the Trojans）$\approx$ cicadas］
\＃11（197）［Odysseus＞men $\approx$ ram＞ewes］

Short Clauses and Phrases：

\＃1（2）［shrieking Trojans $\approx$ birds］
\＃4＊（11）［fog $\approx$ night］
\＃5＊（12）（hosson／tosson）［visibility distance $\approx$ stone＇s throw distance］
\＃10（196）［Odysseus $\approx$ lead ram］
\＃12＊（219）［Odysseus $\approx$ an ignorant man］
\＃13（222）［Odysseus＇words $\approx$ snow－flakes］
\＃14（449）［Menelaus $\approx$ wild animal］
\＃15＊（454）［Paris／Alexander $\approx$ black death］

[^8]2 (3) ที่ல́тє пєр к

But when they each were arrayed with their commanders, the Trojans with a shriek and a battle cry advanced like birds / just as the shriek of cranes goes forth to heaven / when they flee winter and indescribable rain / and fly with a shriek over the streams of Ocean / bringing slaughter and death on Pygmy men; high in the air they bring evil strife.
\#1 (2) [shrieking Trojans $\approx$ birds]
\#2 (3) [shrieking Trojans $\approx$ shrieking cranes] Narrator
See Muellner 1990 passim.
***
3 (10) عỦt' ő 10

As when the South Wind spreads a fog upon the mountain tops, / not at all dear to shepherds but better than night for a thief, / and one can see (so far) as far as he can throw a stone, / even so rose the dense dust of the storm / of those advancing; and very quickly they crossed the plain.
\#3 (10) [dense dust $\approx$ fog]
\#4* (11) [fog $\approx$ night]
\#5* (12) [visibility distance $\approx$ stone's throw distance] Narrator
See the reference to Nannini 2003 at end of this chapter.

 25

When Menelaus dear to Ares noticed him / coming forth before the ranks with long strides, / as a lion is glad that lights on a large carcass / and finds a horned stag or wild goat / while being hungry and he indeed devours it, even though / swift dogs and [^9]energetic youths might set upon him, / even thus was Menelaus glad when his eyes caught sight of god-like Alexander, / for he thought that now he would be revenged on a sinner.

[Menelaus to Paris $\approx$ lion to stag or goat] Narrator
See M. Clarke 1995:146-147.
***
 oű

As when a man seeing a snake springs back and stands away / in mountain glades, and trembling seizes his limbs beneath him / and he retreats and pallor comes over his cheeks, / even so did god-like Alexander plunge back into the throng of lordly Trojans, / terror-stricken at [the sight of] the son Atreus.
[Alexander (Paris) seeing Menelaus $\approx$ a man who sees a snake] Narrator

Sed S. R. van der Mije 2011:372-373.

'Your <Hector's> heart is always unyielding like an axe / that is driven through a beam by a man who skillfully / hews out a ship's timber, and it increases the man's force; / even so is the heart in your breast undaunted.'
[Hector's heart $\approx$ axe] Alexander (Paris)
Note: The two tenors, крaס́ín and vóos, are synonyms as used here.

Because of old age having ceased from war, but excellent speakers, / like cicadas that in a forest / sitting upon a tree pour out their lily-like voice; / even so the leaders of the Trojans sat upon the tower.
[speakers (leaders of the Trojans) $\approx$ cicadas] Narrator
See W. B. Stanford 1969.

[^10]

'But he <Odysseus> goes himself around like the lead ram through the ranks of men. / I compare him to a ram, a ram of thick fleece, that goes through a great flock of white ewes.'
\#10 (196) [Odysseus $\approx$ lead ram]
\#11 (197) [Odysseus > men $\approx$ ram > ewes] Priam
***

 бкท̂тт

'But whenever wily Odysseus would arise, / he would stand and look down with his eyes fixed on the ground. / He would move the staff neither forward nor backward, / but he would hold the staff stiffly like an ignorant man. / You would say he was a surly man or a fool. / But when [he uttered] his great voice from his chest / and words like winter snow-flakes, / then no other mortal man could contend with Odysseus.' \#12* (219) [Odysseus $\approx$ an ignorant man] \#13 (222) [Odysseus' words $\approx$ snow-flakes] Priam

See Held 1995.

The son of Atreus <Menelaus> strode among the throng like a wild animal / [to see] if he might somewhere catch sight of god-like Alexander.
[Menelaus $\approx$ wild animal] Narrator
15* (454) Îoov үáp oфıv пâбıv árńxӨعto knpì $\mu \varepsilon \lambda a i ́ v \eta ̣ . ~$
[Paris/Alexander] was hated by all equal to black death.
[Paris/Alexander $\approx$ black death] Narrator

[^11]
Similar Rhetorical Figures

Transformations and Disguises:

```
Iris \approx Laodice:
```

But Iris went as a messenger to white-armed Helen, / in the likeness of her husband's sister, the wife of Antenor's son, / whom Antenor's son lord Helicaon had [for a wife], / Laodice, the fairest of Priam's daughters.

Aphrodite $\approx$ an old woman:

 عіроко́ $\mu$, ท้ оi Лакєठаípovı vaıєтоढ́on

In the likeness of an old woman, a wool-comber, she spoke to her <Helen> / who used to card the fair wool for her when she lived in Lacedaimon / and whom she especially loved / in her likeness goddess Aphrodite spoke to her.
***

Divine Comparisons:

'She is dreadfully like immortal goddesses in the face.' [Helen $\approx$ goddesses] Trojan elders speaking about Helen Idomeneus on the other side amid the Cretans stood like a god, / and about him were gathered the leaders of the Cretans.

[Idomeneus $\approx$ a god] Helen
Lee listed counted this as a simile (along with twelve other places where the phrase appears in the lliad).

Nannini 2003:Chapter One 7-47 examines similes with an 'external observer/spectator'. N . contends that such similes are a unique feature of the lliad, where they typically take [^12]the form of pastoral comparisons in which the figure of the shepherd/goatherd cannot be identified with a character in the simile's direct context. This figure is 'external' to the simile in the sense that it 'inserts itself between tenor and vehicle'. In the analyses of Iliadic similes that follow, N. demonstrates that the shepherds in all cases assume a role of 'observer', to which she assigns a number of different communicative functions: controlling the audience's pathos, distantiation of the audience from the heroic world, comment on the action of the main narrative, metapoetic comment etc.

For example, the presence of the shepherd and the thief in Iliad Book 3 lines 10 12 cannot be equated with a point of view in the main narrative. The cloud of dust thrown up by the advancing army (tenor) corresponds to the fog on the mountains (vehicle) - but what about the thief who profits from the weather and the shepherd who watches with apprehension? Their singularity makes them a locus for authorial comment on the narrative's main action: shepherd and thief illustrate 'the continuous alternation between winners and losers in the natural course of events'. http://bmcr.brynmawr.edu/2004/2004-12-02.html#t3

Similes of the Iliad Book 4 ( $\Delta$ )

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1 (75) [Athena $\approx$ gleaming star]
\#2 (130) [Athena kept arrow from Menelaus $\approx$ a mother keeps fly from child]
\#3 (141) [Menelaus' thighs stained with blood $\approx$ ivory stained with scarlet]
\#4 (243) [Argives $\approx$ fawns]
\#6 (275) [Achaean phalanxes $\approx$ a cloud blacker than pitch]
\#8 (422) [battalions of Danaans $\approx$ waves of the sea]
\#9 (433) [clamor of the Trojans $\approx$ bleating of ewes]
\#10 (452) [shouting and toil of Trojans and Greeks $\approx$ thunder of rivers in winter]
\#13 (482) [fallen Simoeisios $\approx$ felled poplar tree]

Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#5 (253) [Idomeneus $\approx$ wild boar]
\#7* (277) [a dark cloud $\approx$ blacker than pitch]
\#11 (462) [Echepolus $\approx$ falling tower]
\#12 (471) [Trojans and Achaeans $\approx$ wolves]

 $\lambda а \mu \pi \rho o ́ v: ~ т о и ̂ ~ \delta \varepsilon ́ ~ т \varepsilon ~ п о \lambda \lambda о i ̀ ~ a ́ m o ̀ ~ \sigma ா ı v Ө n ̂ \rho \varepsilon \varsigma ~ i ̈ \varepsilon v t a ı: ~$

[^13]Just as the son of crooked-counselling Cronus sends a star / to be a portent either for seamen or for a wide army of warriors, / a gleaming star, and from it many sparks fly; / like this Pallas Athena darted to earth, / and down she leaped into their midst; and amazement came on those that saw, / both on horse-taming Trojans and well-greaved Achaeans.
[Athena $\approx$ gleaming star] Narrator

She <Athena> kept [an arrow] just away from the flesh, as when a mother / keeps away a fly from her child when he lies in sweet slumber.
[Athena kept arrow from Menelaus $\approx$ a mother keeps fly from child] Narrator
See Dué and Ebbott 2012:8-9.
***

As when a woman stains ivory with scarlet, / some woman of Maeonia or Caria, to be a cheek-piece for horses, / and it lies in a treasure-chamber, and many horsemen pray / to wear it; but it lies there as a king's treasure, / both an ornament for his horse and to its driver a glory; / such, Menelaus, were your shapely thighs stained with blood, / and your legs and your fair ankles beneath.
[Menelaus' thighs stained with blood $\approx$ ivory stained with scarlet] Narrator

'Why is it that you stand so dazed, like fawns / that, when they have grown weary with running over a wide plain, / stand still, and in their hearts is no valor? / Thus you stand dazed and do not fight.'
[Argives $\approx$ fawns] Agamemnon
***

[^14]Idomeneus [was] amid the foremost fighters like a wild boar in valor. [ldomeneus $\approx$ wild boar] Narrator غ́pxó $\mu \varepsilon v o v ~ k a t a ̀ ~ п o ́ v t o v ~ u ́ m o ̀ ~ Z \varepsilon ф u ́ p o เ o ~ i ̉ \omega \eta ̂ ৎ: ~$ фaívet' iòv катà пóvtov, a̋үعı סદ́ тє $\lambda a i ́ \lambda a m a ~ п о \lambda \lambda \eta ́ v, ~$ toîaı ă ${ }^{\prime}$ ' Aiávt $\varepsilon \sigma \sigma ı ~ \delta ı т \rho \varepsilon ф \varepsilon ́ \omega v ~ a i \zeta \eta \omega ̂ v ~$

As when from some lookout place a goatherd sees a cloud / coming over the face of the sea before the blast of Zephyrus, / and to him being far off it seems blacker than pitch / as it passes over the deep, and it brings a mighty whirlwind; / and he shudders at sight of it, and drives his flocks beneath a cave; / such were the phalanxes of Zeusnourished men / moving by the side of the Ajaxes / dark and closely packed, into furious battle, bristling with shields and spears.
\#6 (275) [Achaean phalanxes $\approx$ a cloud blacker than pitch]
\#7* (277) [a dark cloud $\approx$ blacker than pitch] Narrator
***

 v $\omega \lambda \varepsilon \mu \varepsilon ́ \omega \varsigma ~ п o ́ \lambda \varepsilon \mu \circ v ~ \delta \varepsilon ́ . ~$

As when on a beach resounding [with surf] waves of the sea / rise, one after another, before the driving Zephyrus; / out on the deep at the first [each wave] is gathered in a crest, but thereafter / when broken upon the land it thunders aloud, and round about the headlands / it swells and rears its head, and spews forth the sea's foam: / so then did the battalions of the Danaans move, / one after another, without cease, into battle. [battalions of Danaans $\approx$ waves of the sea] Narrator

9 (433) T T $\omega$ ) $\mu u$ íaı $\dot{\varepsilon} \sigma t \eta ́ к а \sigma ı v ~ a ́ \mu \varepsilon \lambda ү o ́ \mu \varepsilon v a ı ~ ү a ́ \lambda a ~ \lambda \varepsilon u к o ̀ v ~$
 435 $\omega ̈ \varsigma ~ T \rho \omega ́ \omega v$ á $\lambda a \lambda \eta t o ̀ s ~ a ́ v a ̀ ~ \sigma t \rho a t o ̀ v ~ \varepsilon u ́ \rho u ̀ v ~ o ́ \rho \omega ́ \rho \varepsilon ı: ~$

[^15]But the Trojans, just as ewes in the farm-yard of a man of great wealth / stand in throngs past counting to be milked of their white milk, / and bleat without ceasing as they hear the voices of their lambs: / so arose the clamor of the Trojans throughout the wide host; / for they had not all like speech or one language, / but their tongues were mingled, and they were men summoned from many lands.
[clamor of the Trojans $\approx$ bleating of ewes] Narrator
 غ́ৎ $\mu ı \sigma ү a ́ \gamma к \varepsilon ı a v ~ \sigma u \mu \beta a ́ \lambda \lambda \varepsilon t o v ~ o ̋ \beta \rho ı \mu о v ~ u ̋ \delta \omega \rho ~$

As when rivers in winter, flowing down the mountains / to a place where two valleys meet, join the mighty floods / from their great springs in a deep gorge, / and far off in the mountains the shepherd hears the thunder thereof; / so from the joining of these [in battle] came shouting and toil.
[shouting and toil of Trojans and Greeks $\approx$ thunder of rivers in winter]
Narrator
***

11 (462)

[Antilochus] first struck him <Echepolus> upon the horn of his helmet with crest of horse-hair, / and drove [the spear] into his forehead, and into the bone passed / the point of bronze; and darkness enfolded his eyes, / and he fell as when a tower <falls> in a mighty conflict.
[Echepolus $\approx$ falling tower] Narrator ***

So his spirit left him, and over his body the onerous work / of Trojans and Achaeans continued. Like wolves / they leaped on one another, and man attacked man. [Trojans and Achaeans $\approx$ wolves] Narrator

[^16]

For [Telemonian Ajax] first struck him <Simoeisios> on the right breast beside the nipple as he advanced; / and clean through his shoulder went the spear of bronze, / and he fell to the ground in the dust like a poplar tree / that has grown up in the bottom land of a great marsh, / smooth, but at the very top of it branches grow: / a chariot builder has cut down this [tree] with the gleaming iron / that he might bend a wheel rim for a beautiful chariot, / and it lies drying by a river's banks.
[fallen Simoeisios $\approx$ felled poplar tree] Narrator

Similar Rhetorical Figure

Transformations and Disguise:

But she <Athena> entered the throng of the Trojans in the guise of a man, /
Laodocus, son of Antenor, a valiant spearman, / seeking if she could find godlike Pandarus.

Similes of the Iliad Book 5 (E)

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1 (5) [flame from Diomedes' helmet and shield $\approx$ star of harvest time]
\#2 (87) [son of Tydeus $\approx$ flooding river in winter]
\#3 (136) [fury of Diomedes against Trojans $\approx$ fury of wounded lion against sheep]
\#4 (161) [Diomedes against Echemmon \& Chromius $\approx$ lion against heifer or cow]
\#8 (499) [Achaeans growing white $\approx$ chaff growing white]
\#9 (522) [Danaans $\approx$ motionless clouds]
\#10 (554) [Diocles' twin sons subdued by Aeneas $\approx$ two lions subdued by axe men]
\#12 (597) [Diomedes $\approx$ man startled by a swift river]
 man sees into a haze]
\#16 (öбoóv) (860) [Ares' bellow $\approx$ the cry of 9000-10,000 men in battle]
\#17 (oìn/тоîo؟) (864) [Ares $\approx$ black mist]
\#18 (902) [blood of Ares' wound $\approx$ milk curdled by fig juice]

[^17]
Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#5 (299) [Aeneas $\approx$ lion]
\#6 (476) [Hector's sisters' husbands and his brothers $\approx$ dogs around a lion]
\#7 (487) [Hector and Trojans $\approx$ someone snared in flax]
\#11 (560) [Diocles' twin sons, Crethon and Orsilochus $\approx$ fir-trees]
\#14 (778) [Athena and Hera $\approx$ timorous doves]
\#15 (782) [Argives around Diomedes $\approx$ carnivorous lions and wild boars]

She <Athena> kindled from his <Diomedes'> helmet and shield an unwearying flame, / like the star of harvest time that shines bright above all others / when it has bathed in the stream of Ocean.
[flame from Diomedes' helmet and shield $\approx$ star of harvest time] Narrator

 90

T $\rho \omega ́ \omega v$, oủठ' ảpa $\mu \mathrm{vv} \mu i ́ \mu \mathrm{vov} п о \lambda \varepsilon ́ \varepsilon \varsigma ~ п \varepsilon \rho ~ \varepsilon ́ o ́ v t \varepsilon \varsigma . ~$
For he stormed across the plain like a river in winter at the full, / that with its swift flood sweeps away the embankments; / the close-fenced embankments do not hold it back, / neither do the fences of the fruitful vineyards stay / its sudden coming when the rain of Zeus drives it on; / and before it in multitudes the fair works of men fall in ruin. / Even so before the son of Tydeus the thick phalanxes of the Trojans were driven in rout, / and they did not withstand him despite being so many. [son of Tydeus $\approx$ flooding river in winter] Narrator
***

[^18]
Now indeed fury three times as great took him, even as [it takes] a lion / that a shepherd in the field, guarding his fleecy sheep, / has wounded as he leaped over the wall of the sheep-fold, but has not subdued; / he has roused his might, but thereafter makes no more defense, / but [the lion] went among the farm buildings, and the deserted flock is driven in rout, / and the sheep heaped up, very near each other, / but the lion eagerly leaps out of the high fold; / even so mighty Diomedes eagerly engaged the Trojans.
[fury of Diomedes against Trojans $\approx$ fury of wounded lion against sheep] Narrator

Even as a lion leaps among the cattle and breaks the neck / of a heifer or a cow as they graze in a woodland pasture, / so the son of Tydeus threw both <Echemmon and Chromius> / violently [and] unwillingly from their chariot, then stripped their armor. [Diomedes against Echemmon and Chromius $\approx$ lion against heifer or cow] Narrator ***

Over him <Pandarus>, [Aeneas] strode like a lion confident in his strength. [Aeneas $\approx$ lion] Narrator
A

'But they cower like dogs around a lion.'
[Hector's sisters' husbands and his brothers $\approx$ dogs around a lion] Sarpedon
***

'Beware that you <Hector and the other Trojans>, as if caught in the meshes of allensnaring flax, / become a prey and spoil for your enemy.'
[Hector and Trojans $\approx$ someone snared in flax] Sarpedon
***

 500

[^19]
And even as the wind carries chaff about the sacred threshing-floors / of men that are winnowing, when fair-haired Demeter / amid the driving blasts of wind separates the grain from the chaff, / and the heaps of chaff grow white; even so then the Achaeans / grew white beneath the cloud of dust that through them / the hooves of their horses beat up to the brazen heaven, / as the fight was joined again; and the charioteers wheeled round.
[Achaeans growing white $\approx$ chaff growing white] Narrator
n

 525

Yet these stood their ground like clouds that the son of Cronus / in still weather sets on the mountain-tops / motionless, when the might of Boreas sleeps and of the other / furious winds that blow with shrill blasts / and scatter this way and that the shadowy clouds; / even so the Danaans withstood the Trojans steadily, and did not flee. [Danaans $\approx$ motionless clouds] Narrator

 555

 560

As two lions on the mountain tops / are reared by their mother in the thickets of a deep wood; / and the two snatch cattle and fat sheep / and make havoc of the farmsteads of men, until they themselves / are killed at the hands of men with the sharp bronze; /
even so these two <Diocles' twin sons, Crethon and Orsilochus> were subdued by the hands of Aeneas and fell, like tall fir trees. \#10 (554) [Diocles' twin sons subdued by Aeneas $\approx$ two lions subdued by axe men] \#11 (560) [Diocles' twin sons, Crethon and Orsilochus $\approx$ fir-trees] Narrator

[^20]At sight of him Diomedes, good at the war-cry shuddered; / and even as when a man in passing over a great plain / halts in dismay at a swift-streaming river that flows on to the sea, / and seeing it seething with foam starts backward, / even so now did the son of Tydeus give ground.
[Diomedes $\approx$ man startled by a swift river] Narrator
13 (770) ö

As far as a man sees with his eyes into the haze / as he sits on a look-out place and gazes over the wine-dark sea, / even so far do the loud-neighing horses of the gods spring.
[springing distance of horses of gods $\approx$ distance a man sees into a haze] Narrator
***
 áv $\delta \rho a ́ \sigma ı v ~ ’ A \rho \gamma \varepsilon i ́ o ı \sigma ı v ~ a ́ \lambda \varepsilon \xi \varepsilon ́ \mu \varepsilon v a ı ~ \mu \varepsilon \mu a u i ̂ a ı: ~$

 ท̂ $\sigma \cup \sigma i ̀ ~ k a ́ m p o ı \sigma ı v, ~ \tau \omega ̂ v ~ \tau \varepsilon ~ \sigma \theta \varepsilon ́ v o c ~ o u ̉ k ~ a ́ \lambda a m a \delta v o ́ v . ~$

Then the two <Hera and Athena> went their way with steps like those of timorous doves, eager to assist the Argives. / But when they were come where the most and the bravest <Argives> / stood close crowding about mighty Diomedes, tamer of horses, / like carnivorous lions or / wild boars, whose strength is not weak. \#14 (778) [Hera and Athena $\approx$ timorous doves] \#15 (782) [Argives around Diomedes $\approx$ carnivorous lions and wild boars] Narrator ***

16 (860)
 860

Then brazen Ares bellowed / as loud as nine thousand men or ten thousand / cry in battle, when they join in the strife of Ares.
[Ares' bellow $\approx$ the cry of 9000-10,000 men in battle] Narrator
***
 каú $\mu a \tau o \varsigma ~ \varepsilon ̇ \xi ~ a ́ v \varepsilon ́ \mu o ı o ~ \delta u \sigma a \varepsilon ́ o ৎ ~ o ́ \rho v u \mu \varepsilon ́ v o ı o, ~$ 865

[^21]As a black mist appears from the clouds / when after heat a blustering wind arises, even so to Diomedes, son of Tydeus, brazen Ares / appeared, as he went amid the clouds to broad heaven.
[Ares $\approx$ black mist] Narrator ***

 $\omega ̈ \varsigma$ äpa карпа $\lambda i ́ \mu \omega \varsigma$ íńбато $\theta$ оûpov "Apna.

Speedily he came to the abode of the gods, steep Olympus, / and sat down by the side of Zeus, son of Cronus, troubled at heart, / and showed the immortal blood flowing from the wound.

As when the juice of the fig speedily causes the white milk / that is liquid to grow thick, but is quickly curdled as a man stirs it, / so [Paiêon] speedily healed furious Ares. [blood of Ares' wound $\approx$ milk curdled by fig juice] Narrator

See Willcock 1976 for discussion of how flow of blood from Ares' wound was stopped.

Similar Rhetorical Figures

Transformations and Disguises:

Silver-bowed Apollo fashioned an image / like Aeneas himself and with armor like his / and around the image the Trojans and noble Achaeans [fought].
***
 عiठóú

Destructive Ares entering the Trojan ranks urged them on in the likeness of swift Acamas, leader of the Thracians.

'even now Ares is by his side in the likeness of a mortal man.'
***

* asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

|  |  |
| :---: | :---: |
| 785* |  |

Standing there the white-armed goddess Hera shouted / in the likeness of greathearted Stentor of the brazen voice.

Divine Comparisons:

But when for the fourth time [he] rushed upon him like a god.
[Diomedes $\approx$ god] Narrator (phrase repeated at 459)
Lee counts this as a simile.

'[Diomedes] then rushed at me myself like a god.' Apollo

Similes of the Iliad Book 6 (Z)

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1 (oïn/тоín) (146) [lineage of men $\approx$ lineage of leaves]
\#6 (506) [Paris $\approx$ horse]

Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#2 (295) [Sidonian robe $\approx$ a star]
\#3* (389) [Andromache $\approx$ a raging woman]
\#4 (401) [Hector's son $\approx$ fair star]
\#5 (443) [Hector $\approx$ coward]
\#7 (513) [Paris in armor $\approx$ shining sun]

145

фú $\lambda \lambda a$ тà $\mu \varepsilon ́ v \tau^{\prime}$ äv $\varepsilon \mu \circ \varsigma ~ X a \mu a ́ \delta ı \varsigma ~ \chi \varepsilon ́ \varepsilon ı, ~ a ̈ \lambda \lambda a ~ \delta \varepsilon ́ ~ \theta ' ~ u ̈ \lambda \eta ~$

[^22]Then the glorious son of Hippolochus spoke to him: / 'Great-souled son of Tydeus, why do you inquire about my lineage? / Just as is the lineage of leaves, such [is that] also of men. / As for the leaves, the wind scatters some upon the earth, but the forest, / as it blooms, puts forth others when the season of spring arrives; / thus the lineage of men: one [generation] springs up and another passes away.'
[lineage of men $\approx$ lineage of leaves] Glaucus
"фú $\lambda \lambda \omega \mathrm{v}$ : a pun on фú $\lambda$ a, 'tribes', which is close in meaning to $\gamma \varepsilon v \varepsilon \dot{\eta}$ = 'race'; . . . Punning language is a feature of wisdom literature . . . Here it encourages a shift in meaning from $\gamma \varepsilon v \varepsilon \dot{\eta}$ = 'family' to $ү \varepsilon v \varepsilon \grave{\eta}=$ 'race'." (Graziosi-Haubold 2010:117)

For an argument that this is not a simile see Pelliccia 2002.
***
$\tau \omega ิ v ~ \varepsilon ̌ v ' ~ a ̉ \varepsilon ı \rho a \mu \varepsilon ́ v \eta ~ ' Е к a ́ ß \eta ~ ф \varepsilon ́ \rho \varepsilon ~ \delta \omega ̂ \rho o v ~ ' A \theta \eta ́ v \eta ŋ, ~$

Of these Hecuba took one , and carried it as an offering for Athena, / the one that was fairest in its embroidery and largest, / and shone like a star, and lay under all others.
[Sidonian robe $\approx$ a star] Narrator
"Star similes are frequent in the Iliad and are often ominous (e.g. 11.61-55 and 22.25$32 ;$. . . ). . . . The simile adds to the sense of foreboding." (Graziosi-Haubold 2010:117)

'She <Andromache> has gone to the wall in haste / like a raging woman and a nurse is carrying the child.'
[Andromache $\approx$ a raging woman] A housekeeper to Hector
" 'looking like a madwoman'; . . . Later, at 22.460, the poet describes Andromache leaving the house and running 'like a maenad'. . . . "One difference between the two descriptions is that the poet offers a precise likeness, whereas the housekeeper gives her subjective impression of Andromache's behavior." (Graziosi-Haubold 2010: 188)

[^23]She then met him, and a handmaid came with her / bearing in her bosom the tender boy, a mere baby, / the well-loved son of Hector <Astyanax>, like a fair star. [Hector's son $\approx$ fair star] Narrator

440

Then great Hector of the flashing helm spoke to her: / 'Lady, I too take thought of all this, but I am dreadfully / ashamed before the Trojans and the Trojans' wives with trailing robes, / if like a coward [standing] apart I shun battle.'
[Hector $\approx$ coward] Hector
***

As when a horse in his stall that has had his fill at the manger / breaks free of his tether and runs stamping over the plain, / accustomed to bathe in the fair-flowing river, / and exults; he holds his head high, and about his shoulders his mane / streams back, and as he trusts in his splendor, / his knees nimbly bear him to the haunts and pastures of horses; / so Paris, son of Priam, strode down from high Pergamos, / all gleaming in his armor like the shining [sun], / laughing aloud, and his swift feet carried him on.
\#6 (506) [Paris $\approx$ horse]
\#7 (513) [Paris in armor $\approx$ shining sun] Narrator
Graziosi-Haubold 2010:226 point out the identity of simile #6 with that in Iliad 15 (lliad Book 6 lines 506-511 = Iliad Book 15 lines 263-268) and call attention (228) to the "entirely dactylic, 'galloping' line [511]" with which this description of the horse climaxes. For detailed discussion they cite Fränkel 1921:77-78, Kirk 1990:226 and Fagan 2001.

[^24]
Similes of the Iliad Book 7 (H)

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1 (4) [Hector and Paris to longing Trojans $\approx$ fair wind to longing sailors]
\#2 (oïn/тоîaı) (63) [ranks of Trojans and Achaeans $\approx$ ripple of West Wind]
\#4 (235) [Hector NOT $\approx$ a puny boy or a woman who does not know warfare]

Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#3 (219) [Ajax' shield $\approx$ tower]
\#5 (256) [Hector and Ajax $\approx$ carnivorous lions or wild boars]

And as a god gives to longing seamen / a fair wind when they have grown weary of beating the sea with polished oars of fir, / and with weariness their limbs are undone; / so appeared these two <Hector and Paris> to the longing Trojans.
[Hector and Paris to longing Trojans $\approx$ fair wind to longing sailors] Narrator  ó $\rho v u \mu \varepsilon ́ v o ı o ~ v \varepsilon ́ o v, ~ \mu \varepsilon \lambda a ́ v \varepsilon ı ~ \delta \varepsilon ́ ~ t \varepsilon ~ п o ́ v t o ৎ ~ u ́ ா ’ ~ a u ̉ t n ̂ ৎ, ~$ 65 غ̇v $п \varepsilon \delta i ́ \varphi$.

Just as there is spread over the face of the deep the ripple of Zephyrus, / that is newly risen, and the deep grows black beneath it, / such were the ranks of the Achaeans and Trojans sitting in the plain.
[ranks of Trojans and Achaeans $\approx$ ripple of West Wind] Narrator
***
 xá $\lambda \kappa \varepsilon \circ v$ غ́mтaßóعıov, ő oí Tuxíoৎ кá $\mu \varepsilon$ т $\varepsilon$ ÚX $\omega$ v

So Ajax drew near, bearing his shield that was like a tower, / a shield of bronze with seven layers of bull's hide, which Tychios had toiled at in making. [Ajax' shield $\approx$ tower] Narrator

[^25]```
        тòv \delta' аÛ\tau\varepsilon проб\varepsiloń\varepsilonוп\varepsilon \mu\varepsilońүаৎ ко\rhouӨaíо\lambdaоৎ "Ект\omega\rho:
```

``` 235
```

Great Hector of the flashing helm then made answer to him: / 'Ajax, sprung from Zeus, son of Telamon, captain of the army, / in no way make trial of me as of some puny boy / or a woman that does not know warfare. / No, I know well battles and killing of men.' [Hector NOT $\approx$ a puny boy or a woman who does not know warfare] Narrator ***

 ท̂ $\sigma u \sigma i ̀ ~ к a ́ m p o ı \sigma ı v, ~ \tau \omega ̂ v ~ \tau \varepsilon ~ \sigma \theta \varepsilon ́ v o ৎ ~ o u ̉ k ~ a ́ \lambda a m a \delta v v o ́ v . ~$

Then the two <Hector and Ajax> both at one moment drew out their long spears with their hands, / and fell together, like carnivorous lions or / wild boars, whose strength is not weak.
[Hector and Ajax $\approx$ carnivorous lions or wild boars] Narrator

Similar Rhetorical Figures

Transformations and Disguises:

 60 ávסрáбı т $\varepsilon$ рпо́ $\mu \varepsilon$ voı.

And Athena and Apollo of the silver bow / in the likeness of vultures / sat upon the lofty oak of father Zeus the aegis-bearer, / rejoicing in the warriors. [Athena and Apollo $\approx$ vultures] Narrator

Divine Comparison:

[^26]Then he sped as huge Ares goes forth / when he enters into battle amid warriors whom the son of Cronus / has brought together to contend in the fury of soul-devouring strife. / Even so sprang forth huge Ajax, the bulwark of the Achaeans, / with a smile on his grim face.
[huge Ajax $\approx$ huge Ares] Narrator
Lee counts this as a simile.

Similetic Epithet/Adjectives:

228* Өuио入દ́ovta Achilles lion-hearted
270* عЇб

throwing a rock that was like a millstone (millstone in form)

Similes of the Iliad Book 8 ( $\boldsymbol{( 1 )}$

SUMMARY

Scenes:

\#1* (öбov/ヶó $\sigma \sigma 0 v$ ) (16) [Zeus to other gods $\approx$ Hades to Tartarus $\approx$ heaven to earth]
\#5 (306) [Gorgythion's helmeted head $\approx$ fruit-laden, rain-drenched poppy]
\#6 (338) [Hector presses Achaeans $\approx$ dog pursues boar or lion]
\#7 (555) [Trojan fires $\approx$ stars]

Short Clauses and Phrases:

\#2 (94) [Odysseus $\approx$ coward]
\#3 (131) [Trojans $\approx$ lambs]
\#4 (271) [Teucer $\approx$ child]

[^27]'Or taking him  I will throw him into dark Tartarus / quite far, where the deepest pit under the earth is / and where the gates are iron and the floor is bronze, / as far beneath Hades as heaven is above the earth. / You will know by how much I am the most powerful of all the gods. / ... / By so much, I am superior to gods and superior to men.'
[Zeus to other gods $\approx$ Hades to Tartarus $\approx$ heaven to earth] Zeus threatening the other gods

There are two comparisons. The first one in line 16 is a simple factual comparison (Tartarus is as far [tó $\sigma \sigma \circ v$ ] beneath Hades as [ǒ $\sigma o v$ ] heaven is above earth). The second comparison is a simile comparing the Hades-Tartarus and heaven-earth distances to the superiority of Zeus relative to the other gods.
***

And [Diomedes] shouted with a terrible shout, urging on Odysseus: / 'Zeus-born son of Laertes, Odysseus of many wiles, / whither do you flee with your back turned, like a coward in the throng?'
[Odysseus $\approx$ coward] Diomedes
***

And they would have been penned in llium like lambs.
[Trojans $\approx$ lambs] Narrator
***

And he <Teucer> would go back, as a child runs behind his mother, / to Ajax, and Ajax was hiding him with his shining shield.
[Teucer $\approx$ child] Narrator
See Dué and Ebbott 2012:7-8.
***

[^28]And [Gorgythion] bowed his head to one side like a poppy that in a garden / is laden with its fruit and the rains of spring; / so he bowed to one side his head, weighed down by his helmet.
[Gorgythion's helmeted head $\approx$ fruit-laden, rain-drenched poppy] Narrator
***

 ioxía т $\varepsilon$ ү入оutoús $\tau \varepsilon$, غ̇入ıббó $\mu \varepsilon$ vóv т $\varepsilon$ ठоквú $\varepsilon$ ו, 340

And even as when a dog pursues with swift feet after a wild boar or a lion, / and snatches at him from behind / either at flank or buttock, and watches for him as he wheels; / even so Hector pressed upon the long-haired Achaeans, / ever killing the ones in the rear; and they were driven in rout.
[Hector presses Achaeans $\approx$ dog pursues boar or lion] Narrator
***

Even as when, in heaven about the gleaming moon, the stars / shine clear, when the air is windless, / and there appear to view all the mountain peaks, high headlands, / and glades, and from heaven breaks open the infinite air, / and all stars are seen, and the shepherd has joy in his heart; / even in such numbers, between the ships and the streams of Xanthus, the fires shone that the Trojans kindled before Ilium.
[Trojan fires $\approx$ stars] Narrator

Similar Rhetorical Figure

Divine Comparisons:

Fair Castianeira, in form like the goddesses.
[Castianeira (Gorgythion's mother) $\approx$ goddesses] Narrator ***

[^29]"Ектшр ...

Hector ... / having the eyes of a Gorgon and Ares bane of mortals.
[Hector $\approx$ Gorgon and Ares in his eyes] Narrator

[^0]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^1]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^2]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^3]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^4]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^5]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^6]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^7]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^8]:    ＊asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^9]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^10]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^11]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^12]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^13]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^14]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^15]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^16]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^17]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^18]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^19]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^20]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^21]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^22]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^23]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^24]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^25]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^26]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^27]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^28]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

[^29]:    * asterisked similes not listed in Lee List A

