Kazakhstan Nationbuilding and Kazakh Nationalism: A Debate

with

Aidos Sarym, Altynbek Sarsenbayuly Foundation
Valikhan Tuleshov, Almaty Management University
Serik Beissembayev, Central Asia Program Visiting Fellow and Center of Social and Political Studies 'Strategy' in Almaty
Marat Raimkhanov, Hubert Humphrey Fellow at the University of Maryland

A new social activism has emerged in Kazakhstan, organized by different small groups self-defining as Kazakh nationalists. Who are they? What is their audience? What political and national projects do they advance? How do they position themselves toward the current authorities, the relationship to Russia, to the Islamic world, and to their Central Asian neighbors?

Join us for a discussion with activists representative of this new trend and a roundtable with DC-based experts.

This event is part of the CAP series "Central Asia Policy Assessment", generously funded by GW's CIFF funds.

Thursday, January 14, 2016
3:00pm - 6:00pm
1957 E St., NW
Voesar Conference Room, Suite 412
Please RSVP at go.gwu.edu/kazakhnationalism

This event is on the record.