Russia’s Arctic Strategies and the Future of the Far North Part of IERES’s Faculty Book Launch Series with

Marlene Laruelle, IERES

Discussants: Heather A. Conley, CSIS, Caitlyn Antrim, ROLCO, and Timothy Heleniak, AGS

The purpose of Russia’s Arctic Strategies and the Future of the Far North is to offer a comprehensive assessment of Russia’s strategy in the Arctic – including climate change, territorial disputes, military prestige, economic resources, and regional development. It investigates the multiple facets making Arctic questions a revelatory prism through which to view Russia’s current changes and future challenges, and attempts to assemble them into a coherent whole.

Marlene Laruelle is a research professor of international affairs at IERES. Heather A. Conley is senior fellow and director of the Europe Program at CSIS. Caitlyn Antrim is executive director of the Rule of Law Committee for the Oceans. Timothy Heleniak is director of the American Geographical Society.
