PEERS Invites You To:

“French Foreign Policy and the Intervention in Mali”

with

Dr. Erwan Lagadec,
Adjunct Professor of International Affairs

Wednesday, March 27, 2013
1 p.m. – 3 p.m.
the Voesar Conference Room, Suite 412
the Elliott School, 1957 E Street NW
Please RSVP to peers@gwu.edu

Erwan Lagadec: Since 2006 Erwan Lagadec has been a fellow at the Center for Transatlantic Relations at Johns Hopkins University’s School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS); his work at SAIS focuses on transatlantic security and crisis management. He teaches European civilization and security at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. He is an affiliate at Harvard University’s Center for European Studies. He also is an Adjunct Associate Professor at Tulane University's Disaster Resilience and Leadership Academy. An officer in the French Navy Reserve specialized in policy planning, he has worked as a consultant for the U.S. mission to the European Union and NATO, the French military representation to the EU, the military mission at the French embassy in the U.S., the French Foreign Ministry's Policy Planning Staff, and the Delegation for Strategic Affairs at the French Ministry of Defense. He previously was a Public Policy Scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. He is a member of the International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) in London. He holds a D.Phil. (PhD) in history from the University of Oxford (Trinity College), and an MA from the University of Paris-I (Sorbonne). His latest book is Transatlantic Relations in the 21st Century: Europe, America, and the Rise of the Rest (Routledge, 2012). He speaks or reads French, English, German, Russian, Spanish, Italian, Latin, Ancient Greek, and some Arabic.