Security Challenges and Scenarios for Central Asia

with

Erlan Karin
Visiting Professor, American University

Erlan Karin will discuss the diverse security challenges, both external and internal, that the Central Asian countries currently face. He will explore the presidential successions, possible scenarios, and present four different prospects for Central Asia, its stability and its interaction within the wider region.

Dr. Erlan Karin leads the Council of Direction for the Center for Security Program in Kazakhstan. Prior to that he was Chair of the Presidential Administration's Department of Internal Policy (2008), and Secretary of the Nur-Otan Party (2013). He has directed several analytical centers such as the Central Asian Agency for Political Research and the International Institute of Contemporary Policies. He works on security issues, terrorism, the role of security services and questions of political succession.

Wednesday, April 16, 2014
4:00 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.
Voèsar Conference Room
1957 E Street NW, Suite 412
Please RSVP at http://go.gwu.edu/Karin.