A brown bag discussion on

“After Transition and War: Has the Caucasus Turned the Corner?”

with

Dr. Cory Welt

Cory Welt is Associate Director and Professorial Lecturer of International Affairs at the Institute for European, Russian and Eurasian Studies (IERES) at the Elliott School. At IERES, he co-directs the Program on New Approaches to Research and Security in Eurasia (PONARS Eurasia) and teaches courses on post-Soviet Eurasian politics and security. He is also currently an Adjunct Fellow at the Center for American Progress. Dr. Welt has written articles on conflict resolution, transborder security, and political change, including for Europe-Asia Studies, Demokratizatsiya, and The Nonproliferation Review, and contributed book chapters to The Birth of Modern Georgia (Jones, forthcoming), Democracy and Authoritarianism in the Postcommunist World (Bunce, McFaul, Stoner-Weiss, eds., Cambridge University Press) and America and the World in the Age of Terror (Benjamin, ed., CSIS Press). He was previously associate director (2007-2009) and director (2009) of the Eurasian Strategy Project at Georgetown University and deputy director and fellow of the Russia and Eurasia Program at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) (2003-2007). He received his Ph.D. in political science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (2004) and his B.A. and M.A. from Stanford University (1995).
