Looking Ahead:
US-Central Eurasia Security Relations

Join the Central Asia Program, the Center for International Policy, and leading Eurasia analysts for a discussion on the current status of US-Central Eurasia security relations to mark the launch of the Security Assistance Monitor, an online resource of the United States' defense and security relationships around the world.

The Security Assistance Monitor is a new, comprehensive online resource that provides information and answers questions about the US security and defense relationships around the world. Formerly known as Just the Facts, a project which focused on US security assistance to Latin America, the Security Assistance Monitor is an expanded resource of searchable statistics, data, upcoming events, and related information on US security and defense priorities for Central Eurasia, the Middle East, and Africa.

Thursday, September 12, 2013
4:00-5:30 pm

Voesar Conference Room
1957 E Street, NW, Suite 412

RSVP at:  http://tinyurl.com/Sept12-LookingAhead

This event is on the record.