We are pleased to invite you to the annual
PONARS Eurasia Policy Conference 2012

Friday, September 14, 2012
9:00 am-5:30 pm (Registration opens at 8:30 am)
GW Elliott School of International Affairs
1957 E Street NW, City View Room, 7th Floor

Click here to RSVP

The fifth annual PONARS Eurasia Policy Conference will consist of panel sessions based on Policy Memos written by PONARS Eurasia scholars and specialists. Policy Memos will be available online and in a hardcopy volume for registered attendees.

Panels include:

- A Russian Spring? Protests and Public Opinion in Russia
- Cross-Border Conflict and Cooperation in Central Asia
- The Future of Leadership: Russia
- The Future of Leadership: Ukraine, Kazakhstan, and the Caucasus
- Russia’s Perimeter: Syria, Iran, and Japan
- Designing Policy Toward Ukraine and the EU-Russia Neighborhood
- Resolving Energy Trade Disputes in Eurasia

Click here for Agenda and Panels

ALSO!

THE CAUCASUS: A CHANGING SECURITY LANDSCAPE

On Thursday, September 13, PONARS Eurasia is co-sponsoring an event with the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) at 1800 K Street from 12:30-4:30 pm.

Please visit the CSIS website for details and to RSVP.

The Russia-Georgia war of August 2008 threatened to decisively alter the security context in the Caucasus. Four years later, what really has changed? In this conference, panelists assess the changing relations of the three states of the Caucasus -- Georgia, Armenia, Azerbaijan -- with each other and major neighbors, Russia and Iran. They also explore innovative prospects for resolution in the continued conflicts over Abkhazia and South Ossetia and the possibility of renewed hostilities over Nagorno-Karabakh.