Law and the Eurozone Crisis
Part of IERES's European Politics Series with

Daniel Kelemen
Rutgers University

Prof. Kelemen will discuss how European Union leaders have been attempting to use legal tools to impose fiscal discipline on the EU member states, and why this is unlikely to succeed.

Daniel Kelemen is Professor of Political Science, Jean Monnet Chair and Director of the Center for European Studies at Rutgers University. His research interests include the politics of the European Union, law and politics, comparative political economy, and comparative public policy. He is the author of two books - Eurolegalism: The Transformation of Law and Regulation in the European Union (Harvard University Press, 2011) and The Rules of Federalism: Institutions and Regulatory Politics in the EU and Beyond (Harvard University Press, 2004), as well as numerous book chapters and articles in journals including World Politics, International Organization, Comparative Political Studies, West European Politics, Journal of Public Policy and Journal of European Public Policy. He is also co-editor of The Oxford Handbook of Law and Politics (Oxford University Press, 2008). Prior to Rutgers, Kelemen was Fellow in Politics, Lincoln College, University of Oxford.
