Julia F. Lynch is an Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Pennsylvania, where she has taught since 2001. Her research concerns the politics of inequality, social policy, and the economy in comparative perspective, with a focus on Western Europe. She holds a PhD from the University of California, Berkeley, and a bachelor’s degree from Harvard University. Professor Lynch is the author of Age in the Welfare State: The Origins of Social Spending on Pensioners, Workers, and Children (Cambridge 2006). Lynch’s current research agenda is centered on the politics of health in advanced industrialized countries, and is writing a book on the politics of territorial health and health care inequalities in Europe. Another strand of research compares responses to inequalities in income, education, and health care among elites and mass publics in the United States. Lynch is also researching the links between home mortgage foreclosure and health.
