The George Washington University’s Elliott School of International Affairs is one of the world’s leading schools of international affairs and the largest school of international affairs in the United States. Located in the heart of Washington, D.C., its mission is to educate the next generation of international leaders, conduct research that advances understanding of important global issues, and engage the policy community in the United States and around the world. In 2013, Foreign Policy magazine's Teaching, Research, and International Policy (TRIP) survey ranked the Elliott School among the top ten international affairs programs in the United States by the Teaching, Research, and International Policy (TRIP) survey.
