Divided Attitudes?

Preliminary Analysis of Simultaneous 2010 Public Opinion Surveys in Moldova and Transnistria

A presentation by
John O’Loughlin
Gerard Toal

With commentary by
Rebecca Chamberlain-Creanga
Elizabeth Anderson Worden

Rebecca Chamberlain-Creanga is currently a Research Scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars’ Kennan Institute. She has Ph.D. training in Social Anthropology from The London School of Economics and Political Science, where she specialized in the political-economy of identity and conflict. Chamberlain did participant-observation in urban heavy industry on both of Moldova’s river banks, including in the separatist Transdnestrian region, for two years.

John O’Loughlin is College Professor of Distinction and Professor of Geography at the University of Colorado-Boulder. His current NSF-funded projects are climate/environmental change and conflict in Africa and the dynamics of Eurasian quasi-states. He is editor-in-chief of Political Geography and editor of Eurasian Geography and Economics.

Elizabeth Anderson Worden is Assistant Professor of International Education at American University. Her current research focuses on memory, identity, and education in Moldova.
